

CRSR

Paralyzed Veterans of America

State of the Science Symposium

Metabolic Pathways and Therapeutics to Promote Resilience, Rehabilitation and Delayed Aging

Friday, 25 October 2019, 0800-1700

Uniformed Services University of the Health Sciences
Sanford Auditorium
4301 Jones Bridge Rd, Bethesda, Maryland 20814

Free and open to the public

Attendee priority to DoD/VA personnel

Box lunch included

Register at <http://herl.pitt.edu/metabolic-pathways>

COURSE DIRECTORS

Rory A. Cooper, PhD

Director, Human Engineering Research Laboratories,
VA Pittsburgh Healthcare System
Associate Dean for Inclusion, Health & Rehabilitation Sciences
PVA/FISA Distinguished Professor,
Department of Rehabilitation Science & Technology
University of Pittsburgh

Paul F. Pasquina, MD

Colonel, U.S. Army Medical Corps (Ret.)
Chief, Department of Rehabilitation
Professor and Chair, Physical Medicine & Rehabilitation
Director, Center for Rehabilitation Sciences Research
Uniformed Services University of the Health Sciences
Walter Reed National Military Medical Center

State of the Science Symposia

A series of 1-day workshops benefitting Veterans, Military Service Members and their families, caregivers, clinicians, students, medical residents, community based organizations, government agency personnel, and healthcare providers.

Continuing education credits provided by the UPMC Center for Continuing Education in the Health Sciences and the University of Pittsburgh School of Health and Rehabilitation Science at no cost to participants.

CONTACT: Dan Fisher
dfisher@pitt.edu (412) 383-6902